In 1967, John Crook published Law and Life of Rome. Facing the first page of the introduction, he provocatively placed the invocation “Iuris consultus abesto”. The imperative has been as little obeyed as “vade Satana”. This said, at the time the book was not widely reviewed, and such reception as it had was mixed, despite the fact that in the 1960s, Roman law was a more active field in ...

Beyond Dogmatics edited by John W. Cairns

This book contributes to the debate about the relationship between law and society in the Roman world. This debate, which was initiated by the work of John Crook in the 1960s, has had a profound impact upon the study of law and history and has created sharply divided opinions on the extent to which law may be said to be a product of the society that created it.

He emphasises the need for an interdisciplinary approach, a collaboration between scholars of Roman law, legal history, ancient history, and classics. His work, however, has had a limited influence on Roman law scholars. Beyond Dogmatics is intended as a new call to the Crookian approach and poses a break with the so-called German dogmatic tradition. In adherence to its aim it contains contributions by scholars of various disciplines on certain specific areas of law.
